J. A. McLaughlin and Brother recently finished a nice job, for the Circleville Dairy. The delivery wagon is built in what is called a low down body, easy for the driver to step in and out, and make his deliveries. The top or body is painted an auto red, the running gears a lemon yellow. The wagon is nicely lettered in gold. Dairies all over the country are returning to horse and wagons for retail delivery of milk, as it is more suitable to the business.

McLaughlin and Brother have a statewide reputation as builders of delivery wagons.

Announcement of a stock dividend, involving approximately $7,500,000, to tobacco growers and retailers throughout the United States and marking a revolutionary step in the history of American merchandising, has been made by the United Tobacco Company, in answer to a plea from the Joint National Committee of Tobacco Retailers and Jobbers for a living margin of profit.

—TALK UP CIRCLEVILLE—

Dr. W. H. Wilderson, 118 N. Scioto-st., has just been notified of a reunion of his osteopathic college class, to be held the evening of August 6, in the little log cabin in which Andrew Taylor Still, founder of osteopathy, was born just a century earlier, Aug. 6, 1828.

The cabin does not stand where it did then. It has been moved from the old site in the country near Jonesville, Va., to Kirksville, Mo., the city where Dr. Still spent most of his manhood years, and which his work made famous.

For ten days, this August, the osteopathic profession of the world will come back to Kirksville, which has been the home of their science since 1875, for a series of meetings including the annual convention of the American Osteopathic Association.

COLUMBIA AND RIVAL PLANE HELD AT HOME

Miss Earhart's "Friendship" Again Fails To Rise In Flight Attempt

ST. JOHNS, N. F., June 13.—Prospects of an immediate trans-Atlantic airplane race receded for the moment when Miss Mabel Boll announced that her Columbia would not start for Europe today and Miss Amelia Earhart's Friendship again failed to rise from the waters of Trepassy Bay after being taxied down the harbor.

Miss Earhart's plane made two attempts to take off for England. With Wilmer Stultz at the controls the big Fokker was sent down the harbor but failed to leave the water, and was taken back to its moorings. Experts here believe that it will never rise so long as its present heavy fuel load is aboard.

Miss Boll, at Harbor Grace, was awaiting good weather after her record flight from New York.

Both of the American girl flyers, fighting for the honor of being the first woman to fly the Atlantic, are maintaining a reserve in face of delays at their departure, and neither will confess to anxiety over the other's activities.

FOUR CHILDREN MEET DEATH AS HOME IS BURNED

Victims Trapped In Bedroom On Second Floor Of Dwelling

CLEVELAND, June 13.—Four children were burned to death early Wednesday in a fire which swept through their home.

The dead, Augustus Benson, 11, his brother, Lennie, 6, and his sisters, Ophelia, 8, and Ida May, 2, all the children of Augustus Benson.

The victims were trapped in their bedroom on the second floor. Firemen, led by Battalion Chief William Finn, made two desperate efforts to enter the blazing bedroom, but were driven back by the flames.

Fireman Leo Sammon and the children's father were slightly burned in an effort at rescue.

The fire started from an unknown cause in a frame shed adjoining the dwelling. Benson and his wife, Lucille, were asleep on the first floor.

Benson attempted to ascend the stairway to the room where the children were sleeping, but was forced back by fire and smoke. The blaze leaped from the roof of the shed through the walls of the bedroom.

Chief Finn was first to reach the scene and without waiting for other firemen to arrive he endeavored to fight his way into the bedroom. A rush of flame sent him back to the street.

It is planned to have the theatre completed by October 1. Plans are now in the hands of the contractors and these contracts will be let within five or six days.

The contracts call for the completion of the theatre by the date mentioned, October 1, and work will be rushed. The houses on Pinckney-st. where the new building will be built are now being moved preparatory to the starting of construction work.

OHIO GANG IS AGAIN NOTED IN G. O. P. MEET

But It Is A Different Sort Of An "Ohio Gang" Than The Chicago One

BY LEO R. SACK

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—When Herbert Hoover is nominated as the presidential candidate of the Kansas City convention, another "Ohio gang" will be injected into the Republican political picture, but it will be a different sort of "Ohio gang" from that one which came into power as the result of a secret agreement reached in a smoke-filled room at Chicago eight years ago.

The new "Ohio gang" will come into power because it had the courage to defy the Ohio Republican machine and to espouse the presidential cause of Herbert Hoover, a support which slowly but surely has resulted in Hoover's impending nomination.

Without the active support of these Ohioans it is quite possible that the nomination would go to some other than Hoover. delegates are agreed. Hoover's entry into Ohio was in effect, a declaration of his candidacy for president.

Hoover's splendid showing in Ohio, where he received the majority of the presidential preference vote plus 31 of the 51 delegates, demonstrated that he carries a real appeal to the voter who is tired of machine dominated candidates.

The Ohio campaign was Hoover's turning point. From then on his star was in the ascendancy. But Hoover's entry into Ohio was not a mere impulsive thought, it came only after the utmost persuasion and political logic had been employed.

This group is scheduled for real reward from the Republican party and from Hoover himself, should he become president, political students here agreed.

Chief of them is Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Republican veteran and now a candidate for the nomination for Senator. Should Burton be elected it is quite likely that he will be Hoover's spokesman in the Senate assuming that Hoover is elected.

Next is Walter F. Brown of Toledo, whom Hoover called to Washington as his assistant secretary of commerce. Hoover was attracted to Brown when the Toledoan served as chairman of the late President Harding's commission for the reorganization of government departments.

Brown was one of those who pleaded with a "chief" to enter the Ohio primaries and after he did, Brown organized the campaign and it is believed he may be designated as Hoover's successor as secretary of commerce in the event he is elected.

BOOST MOTOR CLUB BEFORE CHAMBER HERE

Columbus Salesmanager Of Auto Organization Explains Its Workings

L. A. Sherman, salesmanager of the Columbus Auto club with which many Circleville and Pickaway-co. motorists are affiliated, explained the advantages of membership before the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday night.

Among other things, he said, the club gives free emergency service to its members and in case of trouble on the road the Clifton Auto Sales company of which Harry E. Clifton is president, the G. L. Schiear garage also in this city, and garages at Ashville, Williamsport and Commercial Point have been appointed as agents of the auto club.

A membership campaign is now in progress with the fee but $10 a year. As soon as this county can secure 250 members it will have an auto club of its own, it was pointed out.

The service at these garages is intended only for club members and others must pay the full price. Many other advantages of membership in the organization which is affiliated with the A. A. A. and the O. S. A. A. were also pointed out by the speaker.

Secretary Karl Herrmann read a letter that he received from the Committee on Soliciting Schemes of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, in which it warned the city against a bunch of solicitors soliciting subscriptions to a book called "America," published by the Kelly Company of Chicago.

The agents are soliciting subscriptions in the interest of disabled veterans of foreign wars. Usually you are approached by a disabled veteran who solicits you to give a subscription. Intervenor with the appeal is one for the widows and orphans of veterans, to whom it is claimed, the fund will go.

The disabled veterans are not employed by the Kelly Company. In the first place, there is no official connection between the Kelly Company and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Ohio Division of the Veterans of Foreign Wars does not sanction this method of capitalizing the kindly feeling and consideration of the public in a book-selling campaign.

The State Chamber of Commerce is also investigating the Ohio Collection agency representatives, and will give a report next week.

Eleven members of the Chamber of Commerce attended a meeting of the Amanda Chamber of Commerce Friday night and reported that they were entertained royally. A return visit will be made by members of the Chamber at Amanda to this Chamber next Tuesday night.

It was announced that the Lutheran church at Stoutsville will give a chicken supper Thursday evening, June 27.

The Ladies Aid of Spring Bank church will give a supper at the Union church, Tuesday evening, June 19.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Chamber of Commerce will be held June 3. Nominations for officers must be made by the next meeting of the club next Tuesday and President Frank A. Lynch, a committee on nomination was appointed. The committee is Karl Herrmann, J. B. Wilson, Earl Lutz, Ed. Schaeffer.

4-H CLUB TOUR

WASHINGTON, C. H. June 13.—Preparations are being made by the Fayette County 4-H Club for their annual tour which takes place Thursday. This year the tour will be made to Dayton where they will be shown points of interest in the city. Several hundred are expected to make the trip.

G. O. P. Leaders Confer

That women are playing a leading role at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City may be guessed at from this picture, which shows Mrs. Charles H. COLUMBUS, O., June 13.—Demonstrating his belief that thirteen is his lucky number, Attorney General Edward C. Turner, Columbus, today filed his declaration of candidacy at the Secretary of State's office for the Republican nomination for governor.

Turner had previously made his formal announcement of candidacy on Friday, April 13, and his declaration today had thirteen signers. It was pointed out also that his name, including his middle initial, has thirteen letters.

Signers of Turner's declaration were: Walter A. Jones, president of the board of trustees, Ohio Wesleyan university; Dr. George W. Rightmire, president of Ohio State university; Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus, Ohio State university; Federal Judge Benson W. Hough, Delaware; Brig. Gen. Edward Orton, jr., former Federal Judge J. E. Sater, R. H. Turner was elected attorney general in 1926. He had previously held the same office in 1915-16. He was prominent last fall in the fight against the Marshall bill, designed for the benefit of magistrates operating "kangaroo" liquor law enforcement courts, and is generally regarded as having been largely responsible for the overwhelming repudiation of the measure by the voters.

O. S. U. TEACHER, CHINESE, IS HELD

ELKRIA, June 13.—T. C. Wang, Chinese University graduate and former instructor at Ohio State University, was held under $5,000 bond in court here today in connection with an alleged attack on his 18-year-old secretary.

Wang and the girl were residents of Oberlin, though neither had a connection with the college there. The Chinese was said to have had the girl in his employ to aid him in preparation of a book on philosophy.

HOPE TO THWART REPUBLICAN PLAN AT G. O. P. MEETING

While Nomination Of Hoover Is Still Certain, Allied Candidates Are Clinging Desperately To Their Scattered Delegations.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

United Press Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—Fighting mad, the anti-Hoover farm relief forces were doing their best today to upset the program laid down for the Republican National convention.

The nomination of Secretary Hoover still was certain, but the allied candidates were clinging desperately to their scattered delegations and insisting upon a final show-down in the balloting.

Suggestions that the hostile candidates withdraw and make the nomination of Hoover unanimous, were met among the allied forces with strong language, which cannot be reported in these dispatches.

FARM RELIEF PLANK BRINGS ROW TO G. O. P.

Platform Drafting Committee Session Breaks Up Over Plank Early Today

BY PAUL R. MALLON

United Press Staff Correspondent. KANSAS CITY, June 13.—The platform drafting sub-committee of the Republican convention broke up in a row over the Farm Relief plank at 4 a. m. today.

In an all night session the committee was able to complete the entire platform except the Farm Relief plank. It decided to go back to work at 10 a. m. in the hope that after a rest some agreement might be reached.

The sub-committee unexpectedly adopted a plank condemning the policy of incurring campaign deficits like that of Will Hays, chairman of the Harding campaign in 1920 which resulted in Hays soliciting a $160,000 post-election contribution from Harry Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome oil reserve.

A prohibition plank much stronger than those of previous Republican conventions also was adopted along lines laid down by Senator Borah of Idaho, ardent dry.

A farm relief plank came up early in the evening when the sub-committee retired to thresh out the campaign document expressing party principles. Agreement subsequently was reached to include in the plank the Borah plan for increased tariff duties on all agricultural products—a mild victory for the farmers, but far from a solution of the whole question.

The farm bloc representation on the sub-committee made clear its intention of fighting to the end for a McNary-Haugen bill plank so the farm plank fight was postponed. When it was resumed, an hour's discussion made clear that no agreement was yet in sight and the sub-committee adjourned, its sleep-deprived members scattering to their hotels and clubs for a brief rest.

The farm bloc included J. O. Schaaf, Iowa, Earl C. Smith, Illinois, and C. C. Teague of California. Schaaf and Smith are supporters of Frank O. Lowden, McNary-Haugen bill candidate.

Most of the other members in the group of 16 are strong supporters of administration policies and are opposed to the McNary-Haugen bill.

Helpless to stem the forces behind Herbert Hoover, the farm group is driving its pitchfork into the platform. Although Hoover forces are in control of the platform committee, the farmers—and those pulling the strings behind them—have succeeded in deadlocking the platform drafters temporarily.

A dramatic farm fight on the convention floor appears certain now. Farm leaders are attempting to storm the convention hall just as they stormed the meeting of the platform committee yesterday. Last night they paraded around the convention district invading the headquarters of candidates chanting "We won't vote for Hoover."

Determined to put Hoover over and certain of doing it the forces in control of the convention are prepared to go to the limit in the platform to grant their demands—except to support the equalization fee.

For the biggest problem of the Republican party now is to prevent the farm row, plus the other anti-Hoover agitation, from carrying over into the campaign after the nomination.

CONVENTION HALL, KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—(UP)—The Republican convention delegates assembled anew today, pressing on to their goal of nominating Herbert Hoover as presidential candidate.

Further important preliminaries were on today's schedule.

The chief business was to be presentation of the platform, the form which leaders had shaped up during the night hours. Before presentation of the platform, the schedule called for selection of Senator George Moses of New Hampshire, a staunch Hoover man as permanent chairman and delivery of his address which was expected to be a rallying cry for the party's coming campaign.

Some fireworks were anticipated on the floor. A minority platform was ready for presentation by Senator La Follette, Wisconsin. From this can arise considerable discussion, though it generally was forecast that the "regular" platform would be the one adopted. The presentation of the platform opens the way to speech-making if speakers desire; but even the chance of hot discussions of most points did not disturb the general harmony which marked the opening day.

The program of the day follows: Music and call to order by the (Concluded on page three)

Attorney General Files His Declaration Of Candidacy For Ohio Office

COLUMBUS, O., June 13.—Demonstrating his belief that thirteen is his lucky number, Attorney General Edward C. Turner, Columbus, today filed his declaration of candidacy at the Secretary of State's office for the Republican nomination for governor. Turner had previously made his formal announcement of candidacy on Friday, April 13, and his declaration today had thirteen signers. It was pointed out also that his name, including his middle initial, has thirteen letters.

Signers of Turner's declaration were: Walter A. Jones, president of the board of trustees, Ohio Wesleyan university; Dr. George W. Rightmire, president of Ohio State university; Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus, Ohio State university; Federal Judge Benson W. Hough, Delaware; Brig. Gen. Edward Orton, Jr., former Federal Judge J. E. Sater, R. H. Schryer, chairman First-Citizens corporation, Columbus; Theodore S. Huntington, president, Huntington National Bank, Columbus; F. L. Stein, president H. Frantz, Columbus manufacturer; Fred Lazarus, Jr., Columbus merchant; Richard R. Reynolds, Columbus, and Mrs. Nan A. Turner, wife of the attorney general.

Turner was elected attorney general in 1926. He had previously held the same office in 1915-16. He was prominent last fall in the fight against the Marshall bill, designed for the benefit of magistrates operating "kangaroo" liquor law enforcement courts, and is generally regarded as having been largely responsible for the overwhelming repudiation of the measure by the voters.

The public is cordially invited to attend and A. J. Lyle, Exalted Ruler, asks that all members of the order be present.

HOPE TO THWART REPUBLICAN PLAN AT G. O. P. MEETING

While Nomination Of Hoover Is Still Certain, Allied Candidates Are Clinging Desperately To Their Scattered Delegations.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—Fighting mad, the anti-Hoover farm relief forces were doing their best today to upset the program laid down for the Republican National convention.

The nomination of Secretary Hoover still was certain, but the allied candidates were clinging desperately to their scattered delegations and insisting upon a final show-down in the balloting.

Suggestions that the hostile candidates withdraw and make the nomination of Hoover unanimous, were met among the allied forces with strong language, which cannot be reported in these dispatches.

FARM RELIEF PLANK BRINGS ROW TO G. O. P.

Platform Drafting Committee Session Breaks Up Over Plank Early Today

BY PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—The platform drafting sub-committee of the Republican convention broke up in a row over the Farm Relief plank at 4 a. m. today.

In an all night session the committee was able to complete the entire platform except the Farm Relief plank. It decided to go back to work at 10 a. m. in the hope that after a rest some agreement might be reached.

The sub-committee unexpectedly adopted a plank condemning the policy of incurring campaign deficits like that of Will Hays, chairman of the Harding campaign in 1920 which resulted in Hays soliciting a $160,000 post election contribution from Harry Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome oil reserve.

A prohibition plank much stronger than those of previous Republican conventions also was adopted along lines laid down by Senator Borah of Idaho, ardent dry.

A farm relief plank came up early in the evening when the sub-committee retired to thresh out the campaign document expressing party principles. Agreement subsequently was reached to include in the plank the Borah plan for increased tariff duties on all agricultural products—a mild victory for the farmers, but far from a solution of the whole question.

The farm bloc representation on the sub-committee made clear its intention of fighting to the end for a McNary-Haugen bill plank so the farm plank fight was postponed. When it was resumed, an hour's discussion made clear that no agreement was yet in sight and the sub-committee adjourned, its sleepy-eyed members scattering to their hotels and clubs for a brief rest.

The farm bloc included J. O. Schaff, Iowa; Earl C. Smith, Illinois, and C. C. Teague of California. Schaff and Smith are supporters of Frank O. Lowden, McNary-Haugen bill candidate.

Most of the other members in the group of 16 are strong supporters of administration policies and are opposed to the McNary-Haugen bill.

Helpless to stem the forces behind Herbert Hoover, the farm group is driving its pitchfork into the platform. Although Hoover forces are in control of the platform committee, the farmers—and those pulling the strings behind them—have succeeded in deadlocking the platform drafters temporarily.

A dramatic farm fight on the convention floor appears certain now. Farm leaders are attempting to storm the convention hall just as they stormed the meeting of the platform committee yesterday. Last night they paraded around the convention district invading the headquarters of candidates chanting "We won't vote for Hoover."

Determined to put Hoover over and certain of doing it the forces in control of the convention are prepared to go to the limit in the platform to grant their demands—except to support the equalization fee.

For the biggest problem of the Republican party now is to prevent the farm row, plus the other anti-Hoover agitation, from carrying over into the campaign after the nomination.

CONVENTION HALL, KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—(UP)—The Republican convention delegates assembled anew today, pressing on to their goal of nominating Herbert Hoover as presidential candidate.

Further important preliminaries were on today's schedule.

The chief business was to be presentation of the platform, the form which leaders had shaped up during the night hours. Before presentation of the platform, the schedule called for selection of Senator George Moses of New Hampshire, a staunch Hoover man as permanent chairman and delivery of his address which was expected to be a rallying cry for the party's coming campaign.

Some fireworks were anticipated on the floor. A minority platform was ready for presentation by Senator LaFollette, Wisconsin. From this can arise considerable discussion, though it generally was forecast that the "regular" platform would be the one adopted.

The presentation of the platform opens the way to speech-making if speakers desire; but even the chance of hot discussions of moot points did not disturb the general harmony which marked the opening day.

The program of the day follows: Music and call to order by the (Concluded on page three)

NOBILE SENDS RADIO STORY ON ACCIDENT

Huge Dirigible Suddenly Shot
To Earth Without Warning, Leader Reports

ROME, June 13.—The North Polar flight of the dirigible Italia ended suddenly, disastrously and from an unexplained cause on May 25 when the big craft shot downwards from a 500 meters altitude. General Umberto Nobile's official report of the accident said today.

"At 10:30 A. M. on May 25 the Italia, regularly flying at a 500 meter altitude, suddenly became heavy, starting a very rapid descent," the official report said.

"We were unable to check the descent either dynamically or statically and after two minutes the airship dropped on the ice."

"The gondola and also part of the upper framing was smashed while the airship was carried eastward by the wind."

"Amidst the wreckage on the ice all of the occupants of the cabin found themselves alive. The wares stored in the cabin mostly were laying on the ice beside the cabin. One minute after dropping from the lips and hearts of the chief and his companions passionately outburst the shout 'Long live Italy!'"

Two members of Nobile's party were injured, the report said. One is recovering but the other, having received an injury below the knee requires some attention.

Nobile reported that the party adrift with the airship should have foodstuffs and other supplies for a period of three months.

The adventurous commander of the Italia advised that the members of the crew in his immediate party were:

The Czech-Slovakian radiologist Behonek;

Navy Lieutenant Viglieri;

Aeronautical engineer Troiani;

Chief engineer Ciacci;

Wireless operator Biagi.

The message said that on the evening of May 30 commanders Mariano and Zappi and the Swedish meteorologist, Malmgren, departed from a position 12 kilometers northwest of Eyn Island, seeking to reach Cape North via Schubert Island, Cape Brinn, Cape Blaten and the Schoresby Islands.

Radio communication with the Citta Di Milano were difficult Tuesday, Nobile reported, but finally were resumed perfectly.

He gave the position of his party

Her Toque in Ring

Here is a smiling miss from West Virginia, Marie Louise Montague, who has thrown her smart, close-fitting toque right out in the ring with Governor Smith's famous brown derby. on Tuesday night as being 80.38 degrees north and 26.55 degrees east. He said the ice had drifted two miles in the past forty-eight hours but that the ice floes seemed to be breaking up somewhat.

Latest radio advices received from Nobile on the Citta Di Milano said that he and his small group of followers were drifting at an average of about one or two miles a day. This is dependent on wind conditions.

He told of the limited food supply but optimistic always, messaged that meager rations would mean keeping the supply available for 50 days.

The Italian explorer said he had heard nothing of the seven men adrift with what remains of the dirigible. Neither had he heard of the three men with whom he started on a walk eastwards. Nobile started with this group but returned to the few who had remained around the radio and huddled within the silken, red colored tent.

MEXICAN FLYER IS WELCOMED AT NATIONAL CITY

Captain Carranza Is Plainly
Disappointed Over Failure
Of Trip, However

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A smiling, 23-year-old Mexican youth began today to reap the rewards Washington offers heroes of the air.

Captain Emilio Carranza, grand nephew of the Mexican president who was assassinated just after the war, was confronted with a crowded schedule beginning this morning at the tomb of the unknown soldier and ending tonight with a reception by Ambassador Tellez at the Mexican embassy.

The youthful Mexican ace plainly was disappointed at his failure to achieve the non-stop Mexico City-Washington flight from which he embarked at 9:10 a. m. E. S. T. Monday. It was agreed among the fliers at Bolling field, who welcomed Carranza to Washington yesterday, however, that he had demonstrated good airmanship in making a landing at Mooresville, N. C.

on Tuesday night as being 80.38 degrees north and 26.55 degrees east. He said the ice had drifted two miles in the past forty-eight hours but that the ice floes seemed to be breaking up somewhat.

BATTERY CARE IN THE SUMMER

Have you had the Battery checked lately?

In the summer time less current is used to operate the starter, the lights are not so frequently used and the car is driven at higher speeds and for longer periods. For this reason the battery is often over-charged, and if this condition is kept up serious battery damage will result through plate buckling.

Some drivers leave their lights burning on long trips to reduce the current going to the battery, but at best this is a makeshift arrangement. The best plan is to drive to our service station and have us check the battery and change the charging rate of the generator for summer conditions.

This is well worth while and your battery will give you better and longer service.

NOBILE SENDS RADIO STORY ON ACCIDENT

Huge Dirigible Suddenly Shot To Earth Without Warning, Leader Reports

ROME, June 13.—The North Polar flight of the dirigible Italia ended suddenly, disastrously and from an unexplained cause on May 25 when the big craft shot downwards from a 500 meters altitude, General Umberto Nobile's official report of the accident said today.

"At 10:30 A. M. on May 25 the Italia, regularly flying at a 500 meter altitude, suddenly became heavy starting a very rapid descent," the official report said.

"We were unable to check the descent either dynamically or statically and after two minutes the airship dropped on the ice."

"The gondola and also part of the upper framing was smashed while the airship was carried eastward by the wind."

"Amidst the wreckage on the ice all of the occupants of the cabin found themselves alive. The wares stored in the cabin mostly were laying on the ice beside the cabin. One minute after dropping from the lips and hearts of the chief and his companions passionately outburst the shout 'Long live Italy!'"

Two members of Nobile's party were injured, the report said. One is recovering but the other, having received an injury below the knee requires some attention.

Nobile reported that the party adrift with the airship should have foodstuffs and other supplies for a period of three months.

The adventurous commander of the Italia advised that the members of the crew in his immediate party were:

The Czechoslovakian radiologist Behonek;

Navy Lieutenant Viglieri;

Aeronautical engineer Troiani;

Chief engineer Cecioni;

Wireless operator Biagi.

The message said that on the evening of May 30 commanders Mariano and Zappi and the Swedish meteorologist, Malmgren, departed from a position 12 kilometers northwest of Foyen Island seeking to reach Cape North via Schubler Island, Cape Brunn, Cape Blatin and the Schoresby Islands.

Radio communication with the Citta Di Milano were difficult Tuesday, Nobile reported, but finally were resumed perfectly.

He gave the position of his party

on Tuesday night as being 80.33 degrees north and 26.55 degrees east. He said the ice had drifted two miles in the past forty-eight hours but that the ice floes seemed to be breaking up somewhat.

Latest radio advices received from Nobile on the Citta Di Milano said that he and his small group of followers were drifting at an average of about one or two miles a day. This is dependent on wind conditions.

He told of the limited food supply but optimistic always, messaged that meager rations would mean keeping the supply available for 50 days.

The Italian explorer said he had heard nothing of the seven men adrift with what remains of the dirigible. Neither had he heard of the three men with whom he started on a walk eastwards. Nobile started with this group but returned to the few who had remained around the radio and huddled within the silken, red colored tent.

There was belief conditions were improving for eventual rescue of this exploring group. The Braganza in its latest advices said that fresh winds were breaking the ice floes off the northeastern coast and this would permit the Braganza to plunge through the ice dotted waters more easily.

MEXICAN FLYER IS WELCOMED AT NATIONAL CITY

Captain Carranza Is Plainly Disappointed Over Failure Of Trip, However

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A smiling, 23-year-old Mexican youth began today to reap the rewards Washington offers heroes of the air.

Captain Emilio Carranza, grand nephew of the Mexican president who was assassinated just after the war, was confronted with a crowded schedule beginning this morning at the tomb of the unknown soldier and ending tonight with a reception by Ambassador Tellez at the Mexican embassy.

The youthful Mexican ace plainly was disappointed at his failure to achieve the non-stop Mexico City-Washington flight from which he embarked at 9:10 a. m., E. S. T. Monday. It was agreed among the fliers at Bolling field, who welcomed Carranza to Washington yesterday, however, that he had demonstrated good airmanship in making a landing at Mooresville, N. C.

ARE YOU "OFF" NICKEL CIGARS?

Here's One That'll Put You Back Solidly

Not only will Havana Ribbon give you a brand-new idea of the value of a nickel. But you'll be ready with a short and vicious come-back to any man who says there aren't any good five-cent cigars.

And why shouldn't Havana Ribbon be good? Listen. Havana Ribbon has the two qualities necessary to make any cigar good: It's ripe tobacco and it's long-filler tobacco. Ever hear of such a thing before in a five-cent cigar? No bitter under-ripe nor flat-tasting over-ripe leaves. No short ends to crumble in your mouth. But long, fully-ripe leaves—all so chock-full of fragrance and pure, mellow-mild flavor. Puff away on a Havana Ribbon and you've never before seen the world so peaceful and yourself so thoroughly smoke-contented. Cigar counters everywhere carry Havana Ribbon. Also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars. A package makes an overflow of enjoyment.

HAMILTON & RYAN

PYTHIAN CASTLE

This Thing of Building Desires

The function of the retail store has extended beyond the business of supplying a market. It must also create one—if it is to tap the pipeline of greater possibilities.

Too often advertising is based on assumption that the public already desires the goods—that its wants have been developed.

Only about 25 percent of the electric wired homes have electric toasters, an item that can be bought for a small sum. About 37 percent have vacuum cleaners, a little over 25 per cent have clothes washers; and less than 2 per cent have ironing machines.

Electrical appliances may be an exception. Yet it is reasonable to suppose that there are vast numbers who do not buy new rugs, new furniture, more clothes and personal items simply because they have not been educated to want these things.

Retailing cannot afford to assume that the "want" is there.

Retail advertising at all times must be alert to the necessity of creating desires.

MRS. COOLIDGE IS RESTING BETTER; TRIP STILL OFF

Presidential Party Is Still Afraid To Leave Despite Her Condition

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Although Mrs. Coolidge was resting satisfactorily today, White House officials have abandoned hope that the presidential party will depart for Wisconsin tonight.

If the first lady continues to improve, however, she will be sufficiently composed to leave Washington tomorrow night, it was said.

Until late last night it was thought she would be able to make the 36-hour train journey after resting today, but physicians counseled her to remain here until danger of suffering harmful effects from the trip had passed.

Latest reports from the White House said her condition was "as good as" but it could be expected that her illness was not considered dangerous.

The eight car special train that will carry the official party to Superior, Wis., remains intact and ready to leave on notice, but the time of departure will not be set until White House physicians consider Mrs. Coolidge sufficiently strong.

Wise Man Said, First Be Sure You're Right

Before we pride ourselves upon that courage which makes us speak rather than to preserve that silence which we so often advised is golden, let us be very sure that our convictions are worthy of the courage of which we boast. In the first place, are they convictions or merely slogan expressions which we have encouraged ourselves to regard as beliefs? Have we thought about them profoundly? Have we taken the trouble of investigating the roots from which they spring? Have we made them part of us through observation, experience and a prayerful desire to know what is truth and thereafter to be loyal and vigorous in our support of it? Have we any reason to be sure we are right before we scream out our confidence upon the house tops? Perhaps, a little more humility as regards one's convictions might not be so bad after all. To be modest and reserved at times requires, perhaps, even a higher grade of courage than to strut about and shout and proclaim ourselves to be the heroes of the world.—Elizabeth Marbury in Delineator.

Safety Organization

The National Safety Council is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization for the promotion of safety, sanitation and health in the industrial, public and home life of the whole world. It was founded in 1913 when a little group of employers appalled by the useless and unnecessary sacrifice of life and limb occurring every year, determined upon a relentless fight against accident causes. Today the council has a membership of over 4,500 in industrial concerns, governmental departments, insurance companies, schools, libraries, municipalities and individuals. Its organization is a vast network of more than 10,000 workers and more than 100,000 workers, whose lives are safer because of its service. Its scope has grown from national to international.

HOPE TO RESTORE ORDER IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, June 13.—Efforts were made today to bring about order through the native city of Tientsin, now taken over by the Nationalists army after sporadic outbreaks by defeated Northern troops.

There was the greatest of confusion. Many foreigners are in Tientsin but they are protected by foreign guards and the Nationalists have promised they will attempt to protect all foreign residents and property in the city.

LONDON, June 13.—The Exchange Telegraph said today in a dispatch from Vienna that Harry Thaw had arrived there.

Condemned "by Default"

French law allows persons accused of crimes, whether great or small, to be tried, convicted and sentenced in their absence. A Pole who is supposed to have murdered an Englishman on the Riviera last year was just been condemned to death "by default" at Nice. He disappeared at the time of the murder and has not been seen or heard of since. It is a curious process, trying a prisoner who is not in court. I attended a trial of this kind once in Paris; it seemed both unfair and unjust. The accused was represented by a barrister appointed by the court, but not much of a defense was put up. Is there any advantage in the practice? I cannot see it.—London Chronicle.

IN OLD KENTUCKY

"Whiskery," the sensational famous race horse, winning the Kentucky Derby, and famous jockeys such as Albert Johnson, Earle Sande, Mac Garner, Earle Poole, and others, will be among the joys of sportmen in "In Old Kentucky," John M. Stahl's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which is coming to the Metropolitan Theater today.

Last year, during the Kentucky Derby, Director Stahl had a battery of cameras at Churchill Downs, Louisville, and Latonia, Lexington, filming the race and many of the incidents of racing. At the famous Blue Farms, just outside Lexington, the complete life of a racing colt was filmed, showing how the animals are cared for and handled.

MRS. COOLIDGE IS RESTING BETTER; TRIP STILL OFF

Presidential Party Is Still Afraid To Leave Despite Her Condition

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Although Mrs. Coolidge was resting satisfactorily today, White House officials have abandoned hope that the presidential party will depart for Wisconsin tonight.

If the first lady continues to improve, however, she will be sufficiently composed to leave Washington tomorrow night, it was said.

Until late last night it was thought she would be able to make the 36-hour train journey after resting today, but physicians counseled her to remain here until danger of suffering harmful effects from the trip had passed.

Latest reports from the White House said her condition was "as favorable as could be expected," but illness was not considered dangerous.

The eight car special train that will carry the official party to Superior, Wis., remains intact and ready to leave on notice, but the time of departure will not be set until White House physicians consider Mrs. Coolidge sufficiently strong.

WHAT BIG STARS DID YESTERDAY

Babe Ruth: hit home run No. 23 with one man on and scored four runs.

Lou Gehrig: responsible for ten runs as he hit home runs No. 14 and 15 and two triples, scoring five runs and driving in five.

Ty Cobb: singled twice in three trips.

Tris Speaker: not in game.

Harry Heilmann: got a triple in three trips.

Paul Waner: three singles, three runs, and a sacrifice in four trips.

Rogers Hornsby: clouted home run No. 12 and scored two runs.

Kiki Cuyler: singled once in two times up, scoring one run.

Wise Man Said, First

Be Sure You're Right

Before we pride ourselves upon that courage which makes us speak rather than to preserve that silence which we are so often advised is golden, let us be very sure that our convictions are worthy of the courage of which we boast. In the first place, are they convictions or merely slogan expressions which we have encouraged ourselves to regard as beliefs? Have we thought about them profoundly? Have we taken the trouble of investigating the roots from which they spring? Have we made them part of us through observation, experience and a prayerful desire to know what is truth and thereafter to be loyal and vigorous in our support of it? Have we any reason to be sure we are right before we scream out our confidence upon the house tops? Perhaps, a little more humility as regards one's convictions might not be so bad after all. To be modest and reserved at times requires, perhaps, even a higher grade of courage than to strut about and shout and proclaim ourselves to be the heroes of the world.—Elizabeth Marbury in Dellatorre.

Safety Organization

The National Safety Council is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization for the promotion of safety, sanitation and health in the industrial, public and home life of the whole world. It was founded in 1913 when a little group of employers, appalled by the useless and unnecessary sacrifice of life and limb occurring every year, determined upon a relentless fight against accident causes. Today the council has a membership of over 4,500 in industrial concerns, government departments, insurance companies, schools, libraries, miscellaneous organizations and individuals. Its influence is felt throughout more than 10,000 workshops and among more than 10,000,000 workers, whose lives are safer because of its service. Its scope has grown from national to international.

HOPE TO RESTORE ORDER IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, June 13.—Efforts were made today to bring about order through the native city of Tientsin, now taken over by the Nationalist army after sporadic outbreaks by defeated Northern troops.

Maintaining of peace is in charge of Generals Fu Tso-Yi and Nan Kuei-Hsing.

The Nationalists took over the city yesterday. Immediately thereafter came reports of looting.

There was the greatest of confusion.

Many foreigners are in Tientsin but they are protected by foreign guard and the Nationalists have promised they will attempt to protect all foreign residents and property in the city.

THAW IN VIENNA

LONDON, June 13.—The Exchange Telegraph said today in a dispatch from Vienna that Harry Thaw had arrived there.

Condemned "by Default"

French law allows persons accused of crimes whether great or small, to be tried, convicted and sentenced in their absence, if the police fail to find them. A Pole who is supposed to have murdered an Englishman on the Riviera last year has just been condemned to death "by default" at Nice. He disappeared at the time of the murder and has not been seen or heard of since. It is a curious process, trying a prisoner who is not in court. I attended a trial of this kind once in Paris; it seemed both unusual and unfair. The accused was represented by a barrister appointed by the court, but not much of a defense was put up. Is there any advantage in the practice? I cannot see it.—London Chronicle.

FATHER TO GET HIS 'INNING'; PAY TRIBUTES

On Sunday, June 17, Circleville Sons And Daughters Will Honor "Dad"

Father and his virtues, too often unsung and unheralded, will have their inning next Sunday, June 17, when the country will join in paying tribute to "Dad." In Circleville, sons and daughters on that day will think in loving remembrance of the deeds of kindness and gentleness of the men who are their fathers.

Mother has her day. She has her songs, too, like "Honest, Dear Mother, I Love You," "That Old Fashioned Mother of Mine," and many others, not counting the 872 mammy songs. But the one tune to father was insulting—"Everybody Works But Father."

So, it is reasonable to ask a fleeting recognition of the "game old guy" who keeps the proverbial wolf from the front stoop.

Father's Day will be observed by individuals all over the country. Churches in hundreds of cities and towns will devote their services to calling attention to the fathers of the land.

Father's Day is said to have been originated by a Spokane, Wash., woman, who decided that dad's homely virtues had been neglected long enough—calendarly, at least. Several years ago, the third Sunday in June became generally recognized and accepted for the official observance.

There has developed, too, the fine practice of remembering father on "his day" with a suitable gift to remind him of a thoughtful and loving family. These gifts range all the way from neckwear, shirts, ties and hose to a jar of tobacco or cigars for the dad who smokes.

Baseball

Yesterday's hero: Larry Benton, carot-topped pitcher of the New York Giants, who stopped the Cincinnati Reds with six hits, the Giants winning 10 to 1. It was Benton's tenth victory of the season out of twelve starts. The Giants pounded Pete Donohue out of the box in the second inning, scoring six runs.

The Brooklyn Robins broke out with base hits in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings, scoring thirteen runs to beat the Chicago Cubs, 13 to 1. Until the sixth the game was a pitcher's battle between Root and Elliott, neither side scoring up until the Robins cut loose.

The St. Louis Cardinals moved within one game of the Cincinnati Reds by beating the Boston Braves, 9 to 6. Sunny Jim Bottomley hit two home runs, his tenth and eleventh, and Rogers Hornsby one, his twelfth.

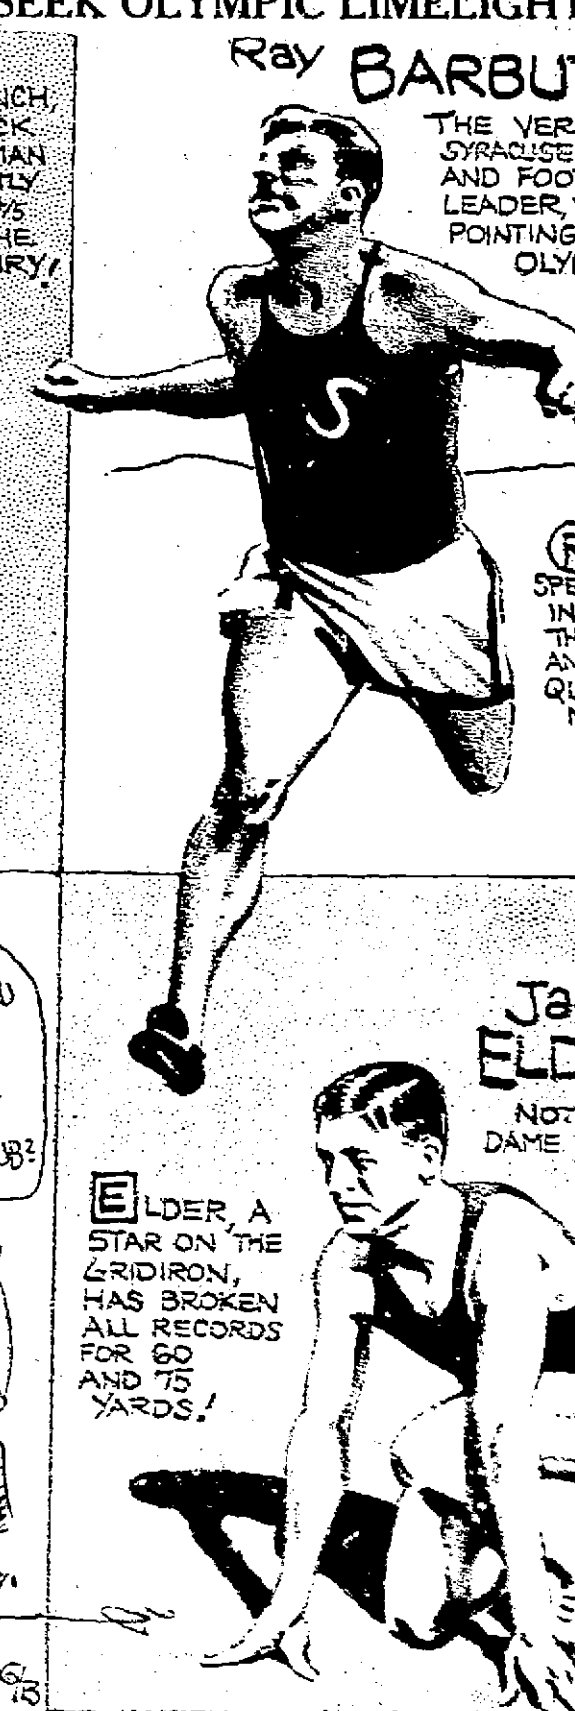

The Pittsburgh Pirates set a new season's record by rapping three Philly hurlers for 25 hits and a 14 to 4 victory.

Led by Larrupin Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankees flattened the Chicago White Sox, 15 to 7. Beaten twice in a row by Chicago, New York broke its losing streak by getting 17 hits, including Ruth's 23rd home run of the season. Gehrig's 14th and 15th additional homers by Combs and Collins.

A triple by Bob Reeves in the tenth gave the Washington Senators a 3 to 2 decision over the Cleveland Indians. It was the Tigers couldn't get any more runs for and lost to the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 2.

Marty McManus hit a home run Ed Morris showed the St. Louis Browns some classy pitching, the Boston Red Sox winning, 5 to 2. The Brownies touched Morris for only seven hits.

PETE LATZO TO SWAP SOCKS IN FIGHT TONIGHT

Less Than Two Weeks After First Big Battle He'll Meet Lomski

NEW YORK, June 13.—Pete Latzo, Scranton, Pa., former welterweight champion, is bent on rising to the top of the light-heavyweight division.

Less than two weeks after he gave Tommy Loughran, the 175-pound titleholder, one of the stiffest fights of the latter's career, Latzo will go back into the same ring at Ebbett's field, Brooklyn, tonight to swap socks with Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., the outstanding challenger.

Lomski and Loughran were signed for tonight's main bout, but the meeting was postponed when the New York State Athletic Commission ruled that Loughran must go through with his bout against Jimmy Slattery first.

Lato readily agreed to substitute for Loughran, and believes the arrangement will give him his chance to demand another match with the 175-pound king.

The hard-hitting Aberdeen fole who had Loughran on the floor twice in the first round of their bout last winter is an 8 to 5 favorite to win. The match is scheduled for ten rounds.

The winner will meet Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, July 1.

THE CLOSING STUDENT YEAR

The closing of the year of schools and colleges is one of the landmarks of our calendar. The importance which people place on it is seen by the way they give money to it. Education is usually the biggest bill in the tax assessment. The taxpayers may growl, but the people have put their hands in their pockets and have increased the school appropriation enormously. And there is no general disposition to cut down the outlay for education in Ohio.

When the parents see how their young people have grown in knowledge, ability to do things, initiative, manners, and general civilization, they say it has all been worth while. They advise their friends to put their boys and girls through the schools and give them more education if they can, and not begrudge the money.

In spite of whatever faults one can find in educational theories, popular ignorance is the cause of our troubles. If everyone had ample schooling, we should not elect so many incompetent people to govern us. Work would be done more efficiently, disease and poverty could be largely abated. The schools show us how to use the tools of life.

The young people are charged with certain faults. But these faults are due principally to home neglect. If there is failure in school, it is because students have failed to co-operate.

The schools open the ways of knowledge. This wisdom can't be forced into people, as you fill a pitcher with water. It has to be appropriated by hard personal effort. And in the main our young people have worked, and their resourceful minds show that the schools are doing their job.

THE CHAMPION SPELLER

A national spelling bee was recently held at Washington and a 13 year old girl, Miss Betty Robinson of South Bend, Indiana, won the first prize. The American people will be glad to give her honors.

So many girls are trying now to see which shall be the most beautiful, that it is refreshing and stimulating to see a bunch of them trying to see which shall acquire the most knowledge along some practical line.

Good spelling is one of the things that make for success. People who can write a well spelled letter give the impression that they are accurate and that their education, as far as it has gone has been a thorough one. Any employer in Circleville would give preference to a young person who was a good speller, over one who was not. It indicates industry, painstaking habits of mind, and a good memory.

COL. LINDBERGH'S JOG

Much satisfaction will be felt that Col. Lindbergh has taken a position as chairman of the technical committee of the new Transcontinental Air Transport company. Many people have been worrying for fear the famous aviator would soon be trying some risky trans-oceanic stunt all by his lonesome. They will like to see him in some good job that will occupy his time, and prevent his taking undue risks.

His advice in developing commercial airplane transportation ought to be very valuable. He is so careful in his own methods, that he will be sure to work for the best plans for safe operation. Commercial aviation will develop rapidly, and there will be unlimited work for a man of Lindy's type in supervising the arrangements made for its success, popularity, and safety.

COURT COSTS $40,002.

Pride, it was remarked long ago, goeth before a fall.

Evanston (Ill.) police the other day arrested a Mrs. W. F. Pringle, wife of a Chicago broker for speeding. She protested that her time was worth $1,000 a minute, and that she needed to hurry to complete a shopping trip.

But alas! The judge before whom she was arraigned either didn't believe her or else wanted to inflict a terrific penalty on her. He fined her only $2; but she had to wait 40 minutes before her case was called.

Using her own figures, her appearance in court cost her $40,002.

The Rambler

By NORMAN W. RALSTON

NO USE

No use to Moan
If you've lost
Your way,
Remember that There's
Another day
And it won't matter,
These tears you
Shed
Won't count for much
When you are dead—
It's the way you
Act

And the way you live
And the helping Hand you decide to Give
To a weaker man
When his troubles
Mount—
These are the things
That really count—
No use to cry
For yourself, my Friend,
For weeping won't help
The trouble end,
And it's best
For you
If you simply grin,
Take off your Coat
And jump right in,
And the job you
Set yourself
To do
You'll probably Finish
When day is through—

And what we mean to say
Is,
Too many seem hopeless
Before they start,
And so comes failure
To chill their Heart,
If you think you can't
You are bound to Lose—
And this is no idle
Thought or ruse—
Say, before you start
In the fight:
"I'm bound to win
For I'll toil
With might!"

A. D. writes this quip, or jingle, on one of our June visitors:
The lightning bug is brilliant
But he hasn't any mind;
He goes flying o'er the country
With his tail light on behind.
And then adds: "Mind or no mind, the 'fire flies' have had their opening night."
And we wonder if A. D. remembers the old-fashioned boy who used to pick their "lighted ends" off and place them in his tie and call them a "diamond stickpin?"

THE VERSATILE RIB

The surgeon who used a piece of rib to men a man's nose may have developed unexpected complications. If the man is ticklish, he is almost certain to laugh every time he scratches his nose, and it certainly does seem odd to think of a man sneezing thru one of his ribs—Charlie Leedy in Youngstown Telegram.

Still, it strikes us as much more sensible than making out of it a wife for a man can get along without a wife whereas a nose is almost indispensable—Tip, in American Legion Courier.

Still, wives are useful. And we infer it was the man's wife's rib they used, probably considering that he had a sort of lien on it.—Ema Spencer in Newark Advocate.

THE VERSATILE RIB

Ema and Charlie may have a good Tip here; but don't you think, Norman, that they're all off? If that surgeon knew his anatomy, he used the man's own rib for the operation—wasn't woman made out of a MAN'S RIB?—Hatch, the Lady from West Palm Beach, Fla.

Man or woman, we'd hate to have a rib sticking in our face—we'd rather give one to make another woman, if necessary.

THE VERSATILE RIB

One way for a husband to win a bridge game is to let his wife beat him.

The most successful man hardly ever feels that way.

SYNOPSIS
Lovely Rose Shannon, one of the dancing girls at Kelly's Rinside Cafe in the Bowery has attracted the attention of Chuck White. He escorts her home. Later he tries to make passionate love to her. In desperation she seizes a clock and strikes him with it. Chuck drops unconscious. Terrified that she has killed him, Rose hastily packs her things and rushes into the night. Running through the darkened streets she stumbles suddenly across a satchel marked "Mercer National Bank." On her way to return it she is met by a policeman on the trail of the bandits. He marches her to the police station.

"Sure, an I was bargain' around with me weather eye open, thinkin' I might pick up some trail on the robbery," Reilly explained. "And as I comes down the street I bumps right into this moll totin' this bag." He pointed to the satchel on the table, which Daniels was already beginning to examine with evident relief. "The Jane's carryin' it, but when she sees me, she drops it and starts to beat it. But I grabs her quick, and asks her where she got it. She says she found it, but sure, Sir, 'n I figgers it's a stall for a get-away. So I blows me whistle, and Murphy comes along and we hauls her in."

"You say you found the bag?" The Sergeant looked at Rose suspiciously. He had seen this kind before, he told himself. A pretty jane, covering for a gang of crooks, who,

"Quit the stalling. You know damned well where the money is."

when they figured they were being caught, passed the loot on and relied on the moll to keep herself out of the situation. He wasn't dumb of that game—not by a long shot. "Uh huh, so you found it on the street. Just how? I suppose it dropped right out of the sky, didn't it?"

"Oh, please, please, believe me. You must believe me! I tell you I found the bag on the street," Rose was crying afresh. "I almost fell over it, and finally I picked it up. I couldn't leave it setting there—"

"Oh, no! It happens every day, don't it," Simpson peered round at the girl, a cynical smile on his lips. He, too, was studying her intently, for the face was new to him.

"Well, Mr. Daniels," Sergeant Cassidy turned to the Cashier, "I suppose you'll want to open the bag and examine it. You've got the key, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes, indeed, Sergeant. I'd like to get it open right away. This is certainly a great relief." He pulled a key ring from his pocket; selected one of the small keys and fitted it into the lock of the satchel.

Sergeant Cassidy leaned forward eagerly. The two detectives gathered round the table with the officer still holding tightly to the handle. Reilly, all watching intently every move of the Cashier.

With a turn of the key the bag flew open and Daniels lifted out a large canvas sack and several big envelopes. The spectators pressed closer about the table. Fumbling with the string on the bag, Daniels finally untied it and allowed it to stand open. In the excitement of the moment, when Reilly forgot to hold onto his prisoner, but Rose stood, her eyes wide with interest, gazing with the others. Then Daniels lifted the sack and emptied the contents out upon the table. There was an intense silence for a moment. Then sharp intakes of breath, low whistles, and a gasp. Round iron washers, the size of gold pieces lay before them on the board.

"My God!" Daniels clasped his hands to his head.

"Well, I'll be damned!" Sergeant Cassidy stared down in amazement at this unexpected turn of events. Rose's eyes dilated in horror as she realized almost immediately the new danger that threatened her. She saw Daniels tearing open the envelopes and waited, her fists clenched tightly, as he pulled out the contents. Pieces of newspaper folded to the size of bills!

Daniels flung the stuff onto the table. He turned around, shaking his head, and looked with puzzled eyes at the Sergeant and the detectives, and then at Rose. As though he could scarcely believe what he saw, he ran his hands through the pile of stuff on the table. It clinked audibly. There was a moment's silence, and then with a sudden turn Simpson grasped Rose and pushed her into a chair.

"So you didn't know nothin' about this. You just found it on the street?" He pointed an accusing finger at his victim. "Come across, now, kid, let's have it. It'll be easier for you if you cough it all up now. Come on, spit it off!"

"So you found it on the street, huh?" Cowles came round behind Rose's chair and shouted into her ear.

The girl jumped nervously, shaking her head, her lips trembling. Her sobbing was becoming hysterical with this new turn of events.

"Oh, so you're one of the strong, silent ones, eh?" Simpson leaned close towards her and stared into her eyes. "That ain't goin' to do you no good. The quicker you get this off your chest the better. You know what it means, don'tcha? A nice, long stretch up the river. Little girls that go up there don't very often come back quick. Come on now, what did you do with it?"

He grasped Rose's shoulder and shook her violently.

"I'm innocent, I tell you! Please believe me!" She turned an appealing glance on the Sergeant, who had been standing quietly aside watching the effects of the questioning.

The Sergeant shook his head. "You'd better come across," was his only answer.

"Oh, but don't you understand? Can't you see I didn't do it? I don't know anything about it. I tell you I found it on the sidewalk. Oh, don't send me to prison, please." Rose flung out her hands, pleading.

Harsh, derisive laughs were all that met her ears. Simpson jerked her about again. "What's your name?"

"Rose Shannon."

"Where do you work?"

"I'm a dancer, Sir, up to Kelly's Rinside Cafe. I tell you I don't know anything about this. Oh, please let me go!"

"You'll go quick enough, but not where you expect!" Cowles leaned over her shoulder once more. "You're a dancer up to Kelly's. Just a nice little girl, fresh from the country, trying to get along in a big city. Yeh, I've heard that one before. Come on, sister, come across. I got your number all right."

"So you're not going to talk, eh, baby? Goin' to keep the little trap shut." Simpson mimicked her voice in an aggravating manner. "Aw, I've heard kid, quit the stalling. You know damned well where that money is." Cowles pointed an accusing finger straight in her face. "Turning on the weeps don't mean a damned thing around here. We got your number right off the bat." He caught hold of her wrist, his fingers sinking deep into the soft flesh.

"All right, Cowles, no rough stuff," Sergeant Cassidy called to his man. "They're liable to get just a little rough down here," he turned to Daniels, "but you've got to deal with these babies pretty nasty sometimes. The best thing we can do is to keep her for a while and she'll either come across or someone'll be around to bail her out, and then we'll have the goods on her. We can pick up the trail for the person that comes in."

"All right, baby, it's the hoose-gow for you, and the sooner you loosen up the quicker you're goin' to get out," Simpson sneered.

"But how can I tell you anything when I don't know?" Rose was still sobbing, unable to cope with the questions that were flung at her mercilessly.

She broke down, crying hysterically, screaming. Her one thought was that no matter what happened she must hide her adventure of the evening with Chuck, and so she couldn't explain anything. But the questions were pouring in upon her, with no cessation, no relief. Fingers pointing at her; faces drawn into crooked smiles, leering, red blotches against the pitiless, cold, gray walls. The strong light in her eyes—no means of escape. On and on, struggling against the torment of her hideous fear.

CHAPTER VI.

The cold, gray-green light of early morning came seeping through the dusty, grimy windows of a tiny shop on a side street in the Tenderloin district. Here a medley of junk intermingled with authentic antiques. Glass bottles of rare design glowed dimly, reflecting globular amber beads, deep yellow like cats' eyes at night. Carved ivory brought from far-off places reposed beside early American pewter.

LIVE STOCK

SCRUB BULL IS CAUSE OF LOSS

The loss to the farmers through the use of scrub sires is enormous. Here is one instance. In 1918 two bull calves were born on adjoining farms; both were from good bred cows. One was from a pure bred bull with a long line of pure bred ancestors; the other calf was from a line of scrub sires. These calves grew up on adjoining farms, the one as a choice steer, the other as a scrub bull. When two years old they were both sent to the stock yards. The scrub weighed 900 pounds and sold at 7 cents; it dressed 48 per cent and brought $33.00. The pure bred weighed 1,200 pounds and sold at 17 cents; it dressed 61 per cent and brought $204.00, a difference of $5.00, it left an increased profit of $136.00. Surely this investment of $5.00 was well worth while, and indicates why the scrub bull should be banished.

The above is only one instance of the value of a pure bred sire. In August, 1925, the Ontario Agricultural college at Guelph published the record of an experiment in the feeding of six steers, three from scrub bulls. They were all put on the same rations for two winters and one summer. The pure breeds showed a profit of $14.70. The scrub stock showed a loss of $22.70, a difference of $37.40. This corresponds with the work done by an Ontario farmer, who made $26.00 per steer more from those sired by a pure bred than those by a grade bull.

A Manitoba farmer had two grade cows of similar type and breeding; one was bred to a pure bred sire through a bull loaning club. The other was bred by a scrub bull which was running at large and got into the herd. Both calves were developed as steers and had the same chances to put on flesh. They were sold in April, 1925, the one sired by the scrub bull showing a loss of 85 cents, whereas the one from the pure bred sire showed a profit of $19.00. This is conclusive evidence that good breeding pays.

Winter Litters Often Open Way to Profits

In an address on swine feeders' day at University farm, St. Paul, Minn., Andrew Boss, vice-director of the Minnesota experiment station, said that hog production could well be made to contribute about one-fifth of the income on the average Minnesota farm. Year in and year out the swine herd can be counted upon for revenue which offsets mortgages and pays other debts and is a reliable factor in the farm business plan.

Farmers wishing to build a well balanced farm program, with revenue coming regularly, will find that hogs can be used to advantage in giving employment to labor not otherwise used," he said. "While it is true that hogs take relatively little labor in comparison with other stock, they do require some labor even in the summer time. In an intensive farm business the raising of winter litters may give considerable employment in a season of the year when the labor of the farmer or of his family is not fully employed. With equipment suited to winter production and with the advantage of cheaper feeds at that season of the year, the profits from the farm business can often be materially increased by reasonable production during the winter."

Use of Alfalfa Hay as Supplement in Winter

The use of a mixture of 50 pounds of tankage, 25 pounds oilmeal and 25 pounds of chopped alfalfa hay as a supplement for yellow corn in winter rations has been advocated for some time. Recent trials at South Dakota have proved that high quality whole hay gives almost as good results as the chopped hay if the pigs can be induced to consume enough of the uncut feed. These results have caused hundreds of northern farmers to adopt alfalfa as a means of improving the standard corn-tankage ration.

Data from the trials at the South Dakota station show that pigs fed a ration of corn and tankage made an average daily gain of 1.32 pounds. When chopped alfalfa hay and lused meal were fed with the corn and tankage the average daily gain was 1.54 pounds. More significant than this, however, is a saving of 16 pounds of feed for each 100 pounds of gain in the pigs fed the ration containing chopped alfalfa hay and the fact that there was a difference of 17 days in favor of the alfalfa fed pigs in reaching a weight of 200 pounds.

Big Doses of Santonin Needed When Fed Hogs

Hog raisers who have been using santonin for controlling worms will be interested in the announcement of R. F. Bourne of Colorado Agricultural college that experimental work by the United States bureau of animal industry does not uphold the claims made for it.

If this drug is used at all, advises Doctor Bourne, it is highly recommended that it be given after a fast of 18 to 20 hours, and in larger than the usual doses, repeated on several consecutive days. When proper preventive measures are taken, he states, it is apparent that the necessity for treating infected pigs as well as serious losses in health and condition is minimized.

The eternal triangle that affords most thrill is the one from short to second to first.—Newark (Ohio) Advocate.

THIS MAY DELAY THE PARADE TODAY

Kingston

On Saturday evening June 2nd a large number of alumni, faculty board members and friends of Pickaway high school gathered in the new auditorium of the high school for their second annual banquet to renew old acquaintances and recall precious memories. The room was exquisitely decorated with streamers of the high school colors and a number of beautiful flowers and ferns to add to the pleasant environment. Music was furnished by the Brown Orchestra of Kingston, while a delicious four course dinner was served. Mr. Kenneth Shepler '21 gave the opening address and welcomed the new members from the class of '28 into the Alumni Association. Response was given by Miss Margaret McKenzie who had been president of the class of '28. The toastmaster, Mr. Donald H. Kempton of '23 was then introduced by Mr. Shepler. Toasts were given by the following alumni, John Ritterger '27, Renick Valentine '23, Mary Foster '24, Alice Phillips '22, Emerson Wright '24, Russell Phillips '23 and by the following faculty members, Mr. E. L. Daley, former superintendent of Pickaway. Miss Katherine McKenzie and Mr. Paul Justice. A very excellent piano solo was given by Miss Ruth McKenzie '20. After the program the president, Miss Gladys Rader 16 took charge of the meeting at which time the various items of business were disposed of and nominations for new officers received. Miss Ruth McKenzie was chosen president for the coming year. Miss Mary Foster vice-president and Miss Odessa Conoway, secretary-treasurer. FATHER TO GET HIS 'INNING'; PAY TRIBUTES

On Sunday, June 17, Circleville Sons And Daughters Will Honor "Dad".

Father and his virtues, too often unsung and unheralded, will have their inning next Sunday, June 17, when the country will join in paying tribute to "Dad." in Circleville, sons and daughters on that day will think in loving remembrance of the deeds of kindness and gentleness of the men who are their fathers.

Mother has her day. She has her songs, too, like "Honest, Dear Mother, I Love You," "That Old Fashioned Mother of Mine," and many others, not counting the 872 mammy songs. But the one tune to father was insulting—"Everybody Works But Father."

So, it is reasonable to ask a fleeting recognition of the "game old guy" who keeps the proverbial wolf from the front stoop.

Father's Day will be observed by individuals all over the country. Churches in hundreds of cities and towns will devote their services to calling attention to the fathers of the land.

Father's Day is said to have been originated by a Spokane, Wash., woman, who decided that dad's homely virtues had been neglected long enough—calendarically, at least. Several years ago, the third Sunday in June became generally recognized and accepted for the official observance.

There has developed, too, the fine practice of remembering father on "his day" with a suitable gift to remind him of a thoughtful and loving family. These gifts range all the way from neckwear, shirts, ties and hose to a jar of tobacco or cigars for the dad who smokes.

PETE LATZO TO SWAP SOCKS IN FIGHT TONIGHT

Less Than Two Weeks After First Big Battle He'll Meet Lomski

NEW YORK, June 13.—Pete Latzo, Scranton, Pa., former welterweight champion, is bent on rising to the top of the light-heavyweight division.

Less than two weeks after he gave Tommy Loughran, the 175-pound titleholder, one of the stiffest fights of the latter's career, Latzo will go back into the same ring at Ebbett's field, Brooklyn, tonight to swap socks with Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., the outstanding challenger.

Lomski and Loughran were signed for tonight's main bout, but the meeting was postponed when the New York State Athletic Commission ruled that Loughran must go through with his bout against Jimmy Slattery first.

Lato readily agreed to substitute for Loughran, and believes the arrangement will give him his chance to demand another match with the 175-pound king.

The hard-hitting Aberdeen Pole who had Loughran on the floor twice in the first round of their bout last winter is an 8 to 5 favorite to win. The match is scheduled for ten rounds.

The winner will meet Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, July 4.

Pupils Of Dolores R. Maxwell Give An Entertaining Recital

The recital given last night at the Presbyterian church by pupils of Dolores Reedy Maxwell was delightful. A profusion of peonies and roses banked in artistic baskets, made a pleasing background. The audience was unusually enthusiastic, and gave vent to bursts of spontaneous applause that encouraged the singers.

The recital, opened with a Spring Song, by the Monday Club Trio, composed of Mrs. Clark Will, first soprano, Helen B. Marion, second soprano, and Mrs. James Moffitt, contralto. A lullaby and gay little ballad by the trio made a nice group, with which the program closed. These three singers are among Mrs. Maxwell's most advanced pupils and sang with a great deal of attention to detail. Their attacks, releases and shadings were good.

Mrs. John Shelby gave two groups of songs. Especially pleasing was the number, "Who'll Buy My Lavender?" She has a beautiful soprano voice, high and resonant.

Ruth Holman sang a group of songs closing with the lovely "Open Secret," by Woodman, a gay sparkling sentiment that suited the singer.

Carl Palm appeared next on the program singing "Poor Man's Garden," by Russell, and "The Gipsy Trail," by Galoway, in which he stressed the charming rhythm and lilt. He sings with zest and assurance.

Mrs. Clark Will's voice is a

Pupils Of Dolores R. Maxwell Give An Entertaining Recital

The recital given last night at the Presbyterian church by pupils of Dolores Reedy Maxwell was delightful. A profusion of peonies and roses banked in artistic baskets, made a pleasing background. The audience was unusually enthusiastic, and gave vent to bursts of spontaneous applause that encouraged the singers.

The recital, opened with a Spring Song, by the Monday Club Trio, composed of Mrs. Clark Will, first soprano, Helen B. Marion, second soprano, and Mrs. James Moffitt, contralto. A lullaby and gay little ballad by the trio made a nice group, with which the program closed. These three singers are among Mrs. Maxwell's most advanced pupils and sang with a great deal of attention to detail. Their attacks, releases and shadings were good.

Mrs. John Shelby gave two groups of songs. Especially pleasing was the number, "Who'll Buy My Lavender?" She has a beautiful soprano voice, high and resonant.

Ruth Holman sang a group of songs closing with the lovely "Open Secret," by Woodman, a gay sparkling sentiment that suited the singer.

Carl Palm appeared next on the program singing "Poor Man's Garden," by Russell, and "The Gipsy Trail," by Galoway, in which he stressed the charming rhythm and lilt. He sings with zest and assurance.
